SUBJECT: THE BROOKDALE LODGE HAUNTING INVESTIGATION: SANTA CRUZ SAT JAN 26, 2008 3:09 PM
BELOW IS A BLAST FROM THE PAST.

Remember the movie "The Lost Boys" and the camera spans the surroundings of Santa Cruz? While your looking at an odd mixture of Santa Cruzians, the song from the Doors plays..."People are Strange". Well, I will explain why I thought the people of Santa Cruz were strange later on in this article. But, for right now, let me tell you the date of this event. It's Saturday, April 21, 2007. I'm sitting at home relaxing waiting on H.P.I. (Haunted and Paranormal Investigations) of Northern California - paranormal investigator Michele Stump. Michele is driving me to Brookdale, California, a small community of the larger city of Santa Cruz. We will be staying at the world famous Brookdale Lodge. This is the place where Al Capone and other assorted gangsters would take a vacation at. Many celebrities of the past frequented this establishment, that includes Marilyn Monroe. Brookdale Lodge was featured on Unsolved Mysteries, because of the little ghostly girl by the creek named Sarah. Yep! Brookdale Lodge is haunted. Some say by 49 ghosts. Ross Eric Gibson - author of "Historical Memories Haunt Brookdale" says: 'a girl in a formal dress runs across the lobby, then disappears into thin air....hidden rooms and secret passages are mysterious vestiges of Brookdale Lodge's rich past.' 1870 is the year that the Brookdale Lodge came into existence. I will discuss the Brookdale Lodge more as we get further into this article. For right now, let me tell you a story that Michele told me on our drive to Santa Cruz. I asked Michele how she got interested in the paranormal and this is what she had to say:

"When I was 8 years old, I lived on the Forni Ranch in the Sugarloaf area of El Dorado County. The ranch was haunted. I came to realize that when my brother was thrown off his bed. One time there was no electricity in the house and I was bored and built a card house, using a deck of playing cards and something mysteriously knocked it over. I used to hear footsteps, glasses clanking and upstairs there was laughter. Of course there was no explanation for these noises, because there was no living human being around, just me. One day, an entity walked past me and ran up the stairs and the door slammed. I would hide in the barn until my family returned, I was so scared. I believe the entity was 'old man Forni' who died at this ranch. The entity would tip over kerosene lamps and when we moved from the ranch, the ranch finally caught fire and everyone thought that old man Forni did it.'

Finally Michele and I arrive at the Brookdale Lodge, she played Rush, Police, Primus and Rolling Stones on her CD player in her vehicle, I was all rocked out by the time I reached the lodge and going uphill to the Bohemian Rhapsody towards the lodge. Michele drove from Cameron Park and picked me up in Elk Grove before making that trek to Santa Cruz. When we arrived we went straight to the buffet. I had lasagna, snitzel, coffee, apple pie and cheese cake. We listened to all of the presentations during our buffet lunch. Shannon McCabe played "AC/DC" during breaks throughout the presentation. The Northern California Paranormal Conference had begun. The itinerary included: Gloria Young of Ghost Trackers' presentation; Shannon McCabe/Alicia Perry of HPI's presentation of "Haunted West Sacramento"; Nancy Bradley - world renowned psychic; Robert Reppert - owner and head investigator for Gold Rush Ghosts Investigations" (Robert Reppert showed us his million dollars worth of ghost hunting equipment and gave us some good tips, such as how he tries to disprove a haunting and when there is nothing left to dispel, then it only leaves the abnormal or paranormal). As I surveyed the crowd, some of the paranormal investigators I recognized or was able to meet this day were sitting around intensely listening to Nancy Bradley and the other speakers. Let's do a roll call: Shannon McCabe - President/Lead Investigator H.P.I.; Alicia Perry/Equipment Technician; some members of American Paranormal Investigations (website: http://www.ap-investigations.com); Douglas Carnahan - President/Lead Investigator N.P.I. (NorCal Paranormal Investigations - website www.norcalghosthunters.com); Nancy Bradley - Renowned Psychic; Robert Reppert of Gold Rush Ghosts Investigations; Gloria Young of Ghost Trackers that rides in a pick up with the license plate 'GhstHntr"; Jennifer and Anthony Baca; Cherie Vincent (Self-proclaimed Vampire, Ouija Board Specialist - HPI Investigator); Shane Thornton - Lead Investigator of NPI; Dandamudi Veerendranadh aka Dee - HPI Investigator; Carol Gillis (Self-Proclaimed Vampire and HPI Investigator); Paul Dale Roberts - Ghostwriter/HPI Investigator; Michele Stump - HPI Investigator; Tim Hawkins, Brian Colbert/Lead Investigator; Mary Casiano; Anne Temple/Psychic; Jonathan Russell; Kristen Sheley/Researcher.

I interviewed Elayne Higbee who works at the front counter of the Brookdale Lodge and she said one time a woman customer approached her with excitement, because she had taken a photo of her spouse and behind her spouse was a full figure apparition of a man standing behind her husband. At MRA Fine Arts (MRAfinearts.com) - aka Gallery That and Gallery This, which is nearby to the lodge I interviewed the artist Martha Applegate and her close friend Jesus L. Galvan. Jesus said that he once saw Sarah (the little girl that drowned in the creek) run past him at the Lodge's bar. He told me that Al Capone and other assorted gangsters would stay at the lodge and that at times the gangsters would have secret meetings in the secret rooms of the lodge. While they conducted their secret meetings, sometimes someone in the meeting would be murdered in one of these secret rooms of the lodge. He goes on to say that there were whiskey stills nearby to the lodge too. He heard stories that some of the gangsters that hung out at the lodge and nearby Hofbraus were sometimes buried in unmarked graves in the surrounding mountainous wooded areas. Jesus says that David Ross, a well known Santa Cruz attorney had some paranormal experiences at the lodge and that one time when Jesus was in the surrounding woods, he came upon some ghostly apparitions of a Vietnamese family. Martha and Jesus discussed that at the art gallery a customer walked in and was looking at Martha's gorgeous paintings. She discussed one of the paintings with the person next to her, only to see that person dissipate into nothingness. This freaked her out and she ran out of the art gallery horrified! Jesus even says that it has been reported that there are ghostly mountain pumas in the mountaneous area near Brookdale. After hearing all of these stories from Jesus, Michele and I decided to check out some of the local restaurants. We stopped at Tyrolean Inn Restaurant & Beer Garden (www.tyroleaninn.com). Wow! Way too pricey! They serve German food, the restaurant looks pretty elegant, but too rich for my blood! This restaurant is located in Ben Lomond. Finally, we found a restaurant with reasonable prices, this was Don Quixote, that serves Mexican food. They had a live band called 'Extra Large' that was playing Latin tunes such as 'Mambo Jambo". I had an enchilada, taco, Pepsi and coffee. Michele and I found other HPI team members at this restaurant and we talked about this day and upcoming evening.

When Michele and I arrived back to the lodge, we met up with everyone at the log cabin. Nancy Bradley was waiting for us. Nancy described various spirits in the log cabin and what they were doing. I shook hands with Nancy and she was a very humble sweet lady with a gracious smile. During this meeting with Nancy Bradley, some girl started shaking and crying, she claims that she felt a feeling of sadness in the log cabin. Shannon and Carol Gillis had to take her out for some fresh air. Nancy Bradley said that two brothers, the Clayton brothers who died in a car accident haunt this log cabin along with other entities. She could feel the Clayton Brothers presence. Roger Reynolds, Security Guard who was at this meeting told me that he has seen Sarah at the front lobby, Fireside Room and the Brook Room. He says that ever once in a while the entities of the hotel turn the power on and off. He says that the infamous drowning victim Sarah is actually Sarah Johnson, age 9 years old, who died on July 1, 1936. Dandamudi Veerendranadh aka Dee ran over to me with a glee in his eye, he just took a photo in the log cabin and the outside area of 6 orbs in unison. He showed me some other orb photos. After the meeting, the band at the hotel started playing some rock and roll, like the song "Elvira". The crowd was a mixture of Bohemian culture with hippie mix. If you think there are no more hippies in California, just head out to Santa Cruz, this is where you will find them. A strange assortment of dancers with strange outfits and strange hairdos. This is where I thought of the Doors song..."People are Strange". Michele and I went to Cherie Vincent's room, room 42 and played her Ouija Board. Cherie has 2 small rose tattoos on her neck, they were once vampire bite tattoos. Cherie is an expert of the Ouija Board and had her sage ready to dispel any demonic entities. We said a prayer before commencing on the Ouija Board. We tuned into a child of the hotel that spelled out the word 'die' on the Ouija Board. Cherie gave me "Directions on how to use the Ouija Board" material to read over. When Michele and I left Cherie's room, I was greeted by Shane Thornton of N.P.I. He told me that NPI found some good findings, one of their members felt a spiderweb touch on their body. They captured orbs and what looked like miniaturized lightning strikes on film, including flashes of light. One photo depicts a whitely mist and this will all be available on the NPI website for the public to see.

The ghost hunt started when the band ended their music, we went from room to room and captured all kinds of orbs on our photos. What was impressive was that Kristen Sheley, a researcher for HPI captured a fast moving solid white orb on her photo at 1:55 a.m. The photo shows very good details of this moving orb. Some investigators heard laughter in the Brook Room and a couple of investigators heard a ghostly voice say 'shhh'. Michele and I discovered many secret passages that we investigated on our own, including a burned out area of the hotel. The fire damage came from a 1956 fire. At 2:45 a.m. my cell phone (which was fully charged) died out for no apparent reason during the investigation. On this night, there were ghost hunters, bikers, Bohemian/hippies at the hotel. What an assorted mix of people from all walks of life. On one hotel door, there was a hanging stuffed bat. Sunday morning, I saw the largest black raven land on the balcony of the hotel where I was staying. At 3:34 a.m. in Michele's hotel room, 3 faint knocks on the bedside cabinets were heard. Michele's room was room 45, next to Room 46 which is a well-known haunted room that an Australian couple was staying at. Sunday morning, Michele and I had breakfast at Brookdale Cafe and Grill. I enjoyed pancakes, cheese/ham omelet, coffee, hashbrowns. I was nice and full and ready for my trip back to Sacramento. How nice, Michele is driving and I can take a snooze on the way up to Sacramento. What's that? I have to be the navigator...sigh. At least Sunday is a nice day, because Saturday night it downpoured rain. A nasty storm for a fun ghost hunt! BELOW IS A BLAST FROM THE PAST:

November 7, 2015 Saturday: Paranormal Investigator / Co-Owner of Halo Paranormal Investigations Deanna Jaxine Stinson and I, Paul Dale Roberts explored, hiked and investigated Niles Canyon and Pleasanton Ridge. Pleasanton Ridge where most people hike comprises 5.271 acres of wilderness and open space. Pleasanton Ridge attains elevations of 1600 feet. There are various trails in this area, they are called Thermalito Trail that overlooks Kilkare Canyon; Oak Tree Trail; Woodland Trail; Olive Grove Trail; Ridgeline Trail; Northridge Trail; Shady Creek Trail; Loop Trail; Turtle Pond Trail; Pecking Quail Trail; Sinbad Creek Trail; Mariposa Trail; Cowing Trail; Rabbit Runs Fast Trail. There is plenty to explore. Deanna and I, were interested in the haunting aspects of this area. My research discovers:

MISSING AT NILES CANYON
More than 450 volunteers canvassed the area in and around Niles Canyon in Fremont this weekend during a three-day search for missing nursing student Michelle Le says the Mercury News. Michelle Le is one of many people that has disappeared on the trails in and around Niles Canyon.

Author David Paulides' current project is Missing 411, a series of non-fiction books documenting unsolved cases of disappearing people in national parks. The website for the Missing 411 work is www.canammissing.com. His work on this subject began when he was doing research in a national park, when an off-duty park ranger found him and expressed concern about the questionable nature of some of the disappearing persons cases which occur in the parks. The rangers knew Paulides' background and requested that he research into it and see if he could find any leads. Paulides obliged, and since then asserts that he has uncovered multiple lines of evidence to suggest negligence on behalf of the park service in keeping track of their missing people, and a continuous series of disappearances from all across the U.S., and even other parts of the world, that seem to defy all logical and conventional explanations.

As of 2015, Paulides has written five books on the topic of missing people who he contends have disappeared or died under mysterious circumstances in National Parks and wilderness areas. According to his most recent book, a sobering coincidence, his group does not yet have a theory on what is causing the disappearances, although their field of suspects is narrowing. He advises that readers go outside of their normal comfort zone in trying to nail down who or what the culprit is.

Strange things happen in the woods and here are some of the theories.
1. The woods is an exceptional area for UFO abductions. If I was an alien and was studying the biological properties of a human, I would not go into the city to abduct a human, I would find a human in the woods. The simple explanation for the missing human is that the human got lost in the woods. National Parks don't care about the missing, because they do not even keep any statistical records on missing people in the parks. Some of the disappearances almost seem supernatural. Case example. A child is walking ahead of his parents and family, he goes over a slope and cannot be seen. As the family reaches the area where the slope is, the child has vanished and cannot be found anywhere. The child's decomposed body is later found miles away from the trail. His body is found at some large jagged walks. How could a small child walk through large jagged rocks? The child's clothes are intact and not torn. How can this be? I can see why people say that this sounds like a UFO abduction. One of the weirdest incidents that happened in the wilds of the Ural Mountains is the Dyatlov Pass Incident, that you can read here at Wikipedia: en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dyatlov_Pass_incident - Now to the 2nd theory.

2. Bigfoot or Sasquatch is taking hikers, campers, hunters, fisherman. Another theory is:

3. Cannibals in the Woods. Yes, feral people that have a taste for human flesh. Shades of Sawney Bean: en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Sawney_Bean

4. Satanists or other cults that hang out in the woods to conduct rituals and human sacrifices; 5. Serial killers that have nothing better to do, than to kill people. Of course David Carpenter aka the Trailside Killer and Cary Anthony Stayner aka the Yosemite Killer loved the woods. 6. Our final theory, that there is a portal in various locations of the world that are connected to leylines and are connected to the wilds. When walking into those portals, you find yourself in another reality. Could the missing people be walking into another dimension? It's kind of interesting that wilderness areas that have a lot of missing people are named after the devil. Such as Devil's Peak, Mount Diablo, Devil's Lake, etc.

Niles Canyon is a hotbed of paranormal activity and below are just some of the few stories.

THE NILES GOBLIN:
Kelli Perez was hiking at Niles Canyon, when she was accosted by a hairy little creature. The creature came out of nowhere. It brushed past her at lightning speed knocking her down. Kelli discovered she had four claw marks on her arm. The creature vanished behind some rocks. This happened in 1962. There was another incident in 1978. Genalyn Serrato was jogging in the area and she spotted a strange hairy creature looking at her from the bushes. As soon as she saw this creature, she turned back and ran towards her car and sped off. Genalyn made a sketch of what she saw. She referred the creature as the Niles Goblin.

THE NILES CANYON GHOST aka THE PROM DRESS HITCHHIKER
The Niles Canyon ghost story is the Northern California variation on the vanishing hitchhiker archetype. There are many different variations of this story depending on whom you ask. All stories include a girl being involved in some sort of motorized vehicle accident on February 26 (the year often changes). One variation of the story includes a girl being involved in a car crash on Niles Canyon road (off the 680 freeway in Sunol, California) on the way to her prom. The girl dies on impact and to this day is said to haunt Niles Canyon road every February 26. The tale of the haunting goes that people traveling along Niles Canyon road (now Highway 84) on the night of February 26 will see a normal-looking high school-aged girl walking along the road in a prom dress (many people have said it is white). People traveling along the road (mostly those traveling alone) have said to have stopped and offered the girl a ride. She accepts the ride, giving the driver an address across the bridge (either Dumbarton or Bay Bridge depending on the storyteller). Once the driver gets to the beginning of the bridge, the girl will disappear. Sometimes people have gone to the address to find that a girl many years ago matching that description once lived there. Today, many people will travel along this treacherous pitch black road in the hopes of catching a glimpse of the Niles Canyon ghost. The latest report is in 2013. Michael Tucker on Newport Beach, CA says that he saw a girl in a white prom dress walking alongside of the road. He slowed down his car to get a better look at her and she turned around and gave Michael a sinister grin. Michael calls her the Prom Dress Hitchhiker, because she did have her thumb out. Michael says that her grin brought chills down his spine. When he looked in the rear view mirror, she was gone. This happened around 9pm in the month of November. Michael was looking for a place to bury his dog named Marble.

WHITE WITCH OF NILES CANYON

The story goes that a young woman with the last name Lowerey was on her way to a wedding possibly her own. Riding in a horse drawn carriage near the way stop of Scott's Corners, (between Pleasanton and Sunol, CA. Area is now Highway 84/680) she was thrown from the carriage when the horses were spooked by the first of two oncoming horseless carriages (car). After she was thrown the 2nd car struck her. Miss Lowerey became the first person to ever be killed by an automobile in this area. Many have seen a woman in white by the cemetery and nearby areas, accompanied with strange lights. According to legend, Lowerey was considered a witch, because she dabbled in the occult with tarot cards and a Ouija Board. It is said that she floats in the air when moving from point A to point B. She floats 5 feet in the air. Paranormal enthusiasts have taken photos of orbs at Mission San Jose's church and in the graveyard.

SECRET SIDEWALK OF NILES CANYON:

Yes, there is a Secret Sidewalk at Niles Canyon and for more information about this sidewalk, there is a website dedicated to the Secret Sidewalk, read here: www.lovehaight.org/links/secret_sidewalk/

UFOS ARE SEEN AT NILES CANYON:

Here are some of the reports. There was a ball of light flying over Central Valley and over SF Bay area. I witnessed a ball of white light travelling with the contours of the hills in Niles Canyon {Fremont}. A friend said they saw the same object leave the canyon and fly over Union City then the San Francisco Bay streaking straight up over the bay. Next day the paper reported the same object flying over the Central Valley from the Sierras. (NUFORC Note: Witness indicates that the date of the event is approximate. PD)

His Written Report:

"I was getting ready to hop in bed. The North wall in my bedroom was almost all windows and I had a nice view of the canyon wall opposite the one our house was built on. I saw two diamond shaped craft slowly descending vertically, disappearing behind the hill on the other side of the canyon. As they descended they pulsated slowly in unison back and forth from a bright red to orange in color. As they became bright red, the sky around them glowed giving them an aura. I could clearly see their shape and could tell they were not anything like a plane or helicopter. It looked to me like they were landing and I had an urge to go and investigate, but fear and the fact that it would have been a several hour hike to get to where they were, kept me from doing so. I stayed awake for most the night waiting for them to take off and never saw them again". (NUFORC Note: Date is approximate. PD)

OUR FINDINGS:

On this day, we did a lot of walking. We took a lot of pictures and there were no anomalies in our photos. I did a lot of EVP sessions, and I did manage to capture one EVP of what sounds like a man saying "mosey along". As we were walking the trails, there was one point that we lost our bearings. I can see how people can get lost at Niles Canyon. Luckily, we didn't get lost and found our way back to the car.

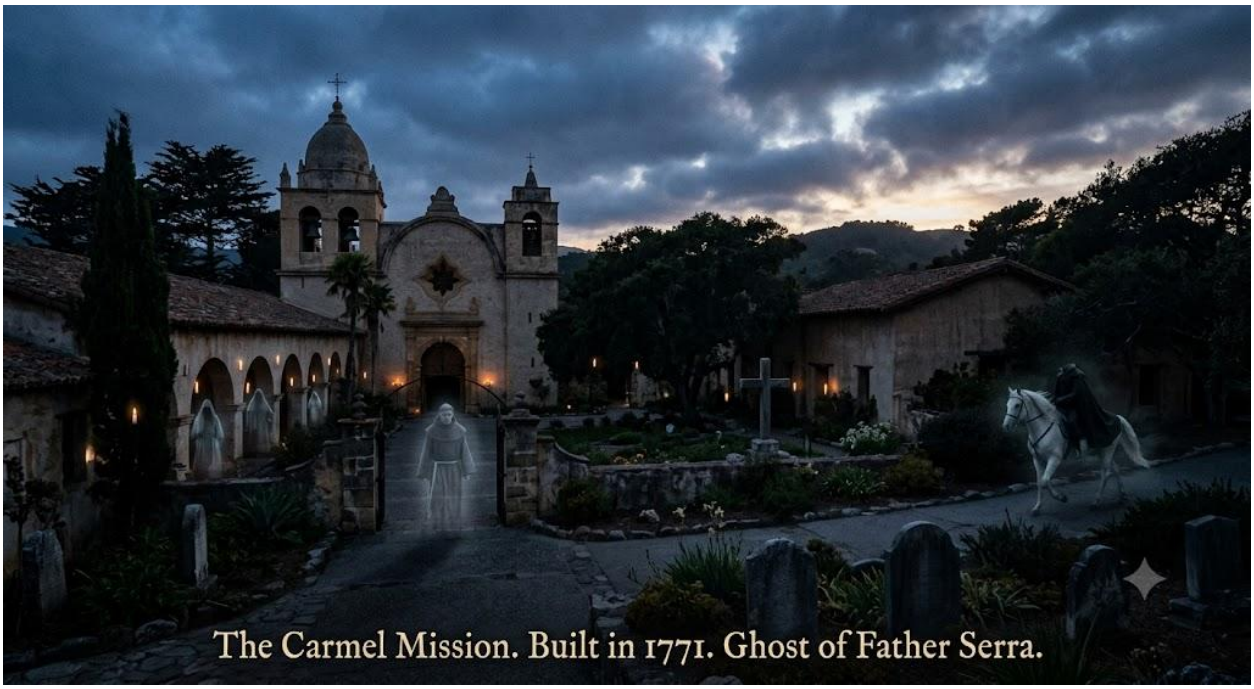
Carmel-by-the-Sea has a reputation for being haunted. The coastal California town is rich in history and folklore, with several of its historic sites, hotels, and coastal canyons tied to spectral legends and paranormal activity.

THE FOUR MOST HAUNTED PLACES IN CARMEL



The Carmel Mission:
Father Junípero Serra, the mission's founder, who is buried on the grounds, is the most frequently reported apparition. Witnesses claim to see his ghost pacing the halls with a lit candle, only to disappear when approached. He has also been sighted inside the chapel, most notably on New Year's Eve. Built adjacent to an ancient indigenous burial ground, the mission is reportedly haunted by the Native Americans who suffered and perished there. Visitors have reported a heavy, uneasy feeling on the property, mysterious shadows, and sightings of a young Native American boy. Paranormal investigators have documented instances of candles in the mission's old rooms lighting themselves and floating through the air. In the dead of night, witnesses have heard disembodied voices chanting, footsteps echoing in empty corridors, and the sound of a phantom dog barking or whining. The Carmel Mission is one of the most famous haunted locations on the Central Coast. It was built in 1771 and sits atop unmarked Native American graves. Tourists have made claim that they have seen phantom robed figures, and even a headless rider on a white horse at dusk. When I lived in Monterey, my parents took me to the Carmel Mission 4 times. During our visits, the only family member that felt anything was my mother. My mother would claim she was a psychic medium. When we walked around the Carmel Mission, my mother would point to different spots at the mission where she felt there was a ghost present.

La Playa Carmel:
This historic boutique hotel (known as the "Grande Dame of Carmel") is rumored to be haunted by a woman. Legend suggests it is Angela Ghirardelli (from the Ghirardelli chocolate family), who built the estate with her husband, or her cousin who drowned in Carmel Bay. Luke Mazero, tourist says he saw Angela's ghostly cousin bopping up and down in the ocean, as if she was drowning. As Luke was preparing to call 911 for help, he saw the ghost rise up into the air and vanish. Luke then knew that he was witnessing a ghost and not a human. Other activity is that guests report unexplained footsteps and the sound of splashing water when no one is around. Guests and staff report seeing this female figure strolling through the gardens or appearing on the terrace. Other activity at La Playa Carmel are unexplained scents and inexplicable sounds that are heard. Flickering lights and abrupt drops in room temperature. Doors that randomly open and close on their own.

Robinson Jeffers Tor House:
Built over a century ago by poet Robinson Jeffers, the historic stone home and its "Hawk Tower" are frequent subjects of local ghost stories. Jeffers famously predicted in a poem that he would haunt the house after he died. The location was even investigated by the Ghost Adventures television crew, who documented unusual readings and activity. the historic Tor House and Hawk Tower are rumored to be haunted. The alleged paranormal activity is largely tied to the eccentric poet Robinson Jeffers, who built the structures himself in 1919. The primary source of the haunting lore stems from Jeffers himself. He wrote a poem explicitly titled "Ghost," in which he predicted that he would talk to the living decades after his death, remaining forever tied to the stone sanctuary he crafted. Over the years, caretakers, visitors, and paranormal investigators have reported several unsettling experiences. Ghost hunters have reported seeing misty, shadowy figures lurking near Hawk Tower and within the grounds. Visitors have noted sudden cold spots, especially when nearing or entering the stone tower. Strange, disembodied sounds have been heard echoing around the property at night when the house is empty.

Mal Paso Creek - Carmel-by-the-Sea, California.
Tourists have seen an old stagecoach and 4 ghostly horses falling off a cliff and into the ocean.

Mal Paso Creek:
Mal Paso Creek (located in the Carmel Highlands along the Big Sur coast) is associated with local ghost lore, most notably involving the spirits of a phantom wagon driver and his horses. According to local folklore, a fatal accident occurred on the rugged, cliffside trails above the creek when a wagon and its team of horses plunged over the edge. Local ghost stories—documented by regional historians like Randy Reinstedt—claim that if you travel along the trail near the creek late at night, you can still faintly hear the chilling sound of horse bells jingling in the dark. Some tourists, ghost hunters claim that they have seen shadow figures darting here and there. Lawrence Johnson from Seaside, CA says he was followed by glowing red eyes. The apparition with the red glowing eyes went through his body causing sharp pains in his stomach area. The pain lasted for a couple of minutes. When Lawrence recovered, he hightailed it to his car. Lawrence says it was the most scariest thing he ever witnessed.
